Good Morning Some time before 3 o'clock the restaurant was so packed that it was an impossibility for any more to crowd in, when Col. F. D. Mussey of the Cincinuati Commercial-Gazette mounted a marble-topped table and gave the word for the fun to begin. Col. Mussey was the auctioneer, and when the day comes when there is no money in the newspaper business the eloquent colonel has a profession ready cut and dried for him. The way he ran the bidding up and the amount he made that good-natured crowd give up was a surprise to those who had come with the idea that because they were on hand early they could have the pick of the house for a few dollars. SOME HIGH PRICES.

The highest price paid for a box was $250. This was the amount that THE EVENING STAR paid for a lower stage box, and when the bid was given the crowd cheered, as in fact it did every time a phonomenal bid was made or the name of a prominent man was given as a pur-conferred upon the institute by a visit from a prince of the church. The cardinal said he was throat-sore, foot-sore and weary.

However, he was pleased to increase his fatigue on this occasion. He appreciated the affectionate reception extended him and gloried in the achievements of Carroll Institute. He recalled when it was founded in 1873; how the literary society had grown from small begin-nings to an association creditable in influence and affluence to the church. Its growth from the little band that used to meet in old St. Patrick's Hall to an organization 450 strong with costly quarters, was the old oft-told story of the acorn and the oak. The building was redit to the Catholics of Washington served rich patronage. It was a fit place to welcome stranger Catholics. The impressive library of 3,500 volumes afforded vast scope for improvement of the mental and moral nature. He spoke of everything in a complimentary spirit. He would be pleased if the clergy and laity would co-operate with Father

Walter in making the fair a success.

In the hall all was light and life. Dear girls, pretty as the sweethearts in novels, hustled to and fro on their raids for votes. Anybody could vote early and often and everybody did. Those smiles were more effective than two-dollar bills, and trouser pockets shelled out a silver lining. Financial rashness was committed in all departments of the fair. The generosity of the patrons was manifested in the bowling alley, the supper room and around the booths. These were standard attractions, with their beautiful decorations and corresponding attendants. The festivities continued till near midnight. A SKETCH OF THE INSTITUTE.

"The Minister" has the same breezy affability combined with force of character that made the "Senator" such a favorite. The role is not a caricature of the American politician. In some respects it is rather a refinement of the species, for there is much in Benj. Franklin Lanton's sincere honesty, direct logic, carnestiners of expression and loftiness of purpose that might with good results serve as an ideal for the future American politicians. Part of this is the future American politicians. Part of this is a strong appeal in behalf of the order and presented numerous official facts and figures showing the amount dispensed for charity, the strength of the order. Ac. Other remarks were made by John E. Herrell, Noble Grand Brink-ley, Vice Grand J. K. Davison, John H. King and Samuel Mahoney. Mrs. Sanderson, the popular and efficient recording secretary of Naomi (Rebekah Degree) Lodge, No. 1, made a very acceptable address on that branch of the order. The addresses were interspersed with music by a quartet consisting of Miss Edna G. might with good results serve as an ideal for accept the future American politicians. Part of this is due to Mr. Paul M. Potter, who wrote the play, music due to Mr. Paul M. Potter, who wrote the play, and part to Mr. Crane, who developes the character in a way which keeps the impression unacter in a way which keeps the impression unbroken through the many interesting incidents of the performance. Mr. Crane has with him a good company. J. W. Shannon, as the Italian minister, was conscientious and capable and Miss Hattie Russell was conspicuously meritorious. "The German Soldier" the house was filled.
The play is a strong comedy drama and the plot is interesting and instructive. Throughout the performance several well-known specialties are introduced. As the German soldier Mr.
Reilly easily carried off the honors. His singing bears a strong resemblance to J. K. Empett erald's possession. Score, 4-0.

In the second half Easterns gained ten vards by the V, and, after lining up, Carr took the ball through Emerald's entire team and scored a touch down. Score, 4-4. The ball then vi-brated from one side to the other for some time; finally Waters again secured a touch down after a series of rushes by Emerald's backs. The Easterns tried hard to again score, but the game finally ended with the (ball in the center of the field.

OBJECT-Under our Equitable Credit System.

YOU are welcome to all the credit you YY want. Why not buy what you put in a house in the same way you'd buy the house itself-part down-and part every week or month?

It's hard to save. Waiting for something you want-need-is harder still. Pennies grow into -dollars slowly-and you might wait until Doomsday before you'd have the ready cash to spare. Don't wait!

Building air castles of what you will do by and-by when you get the money doesn't CARPET your floors-put FURNITURE into your rooms-nor hang DRAPERIES on your walls. We keep telling you YOU'VE GOT CREDIT with US-and it's every bit as good as the dollars.

Holiday Neckwear. FRANC & Son, cor. 7th and D. Why I Do Not Quote Prices.

Lately The Stan has teemed with the lengthy announcements of houses in the Furniture trade proffering tempting inducements to attract buyers. My modest announcements appear from day to day, but rarely do I quote prices, from day to day, but rarely do I quote prices, for experience has taught me that after advertising a "special" for a fixed day the public do not relish a withdrawal of the specified bargain after the time limit has expired—and even if the stock in hand at the time the announcement was made is disposed of the statement of that fact as a reason why further demands cannot be complied with is received by an elevation of the complied with is received by an elevation of the eyebrows, a shrug of the shoulder or some one or other of the many manifestations of dissatis-faction or incredulity which the "dear people" know so well how to assume. If you simply seek "bargains" I have them-and with the you get durability and style. "Time" payments JOHN RUDDEN, The Accommodator
